

Greg Locke is owner and operator of Gotham Glassworks, a custom art-glass studio and proprietorship located in the historic village of Schomberg, Ontario, a scenic 45 minute drive north-west of Toronto in King Township.

Greg has been producing his own unique style of stained glass artwork since 1996 including window panels, lamps, glass art platters, vessels and unique decorative elements.

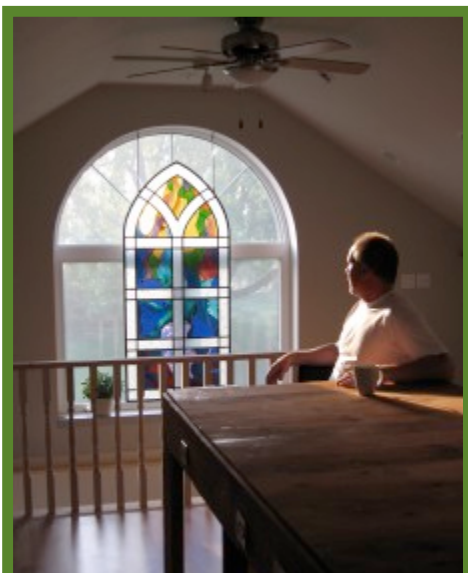

Greg's initial style in traditional copper foil and lead came methods incorporated what he terms "soft gothic" design elements, hinting at the strong colours and lines of the Gothic architecture and art era, "... but not so bold you would tire of it in your home, restaurant or office foyer". Greg's style has broadened in 16 years to incorporate a distinctive palate of unique flowing shapes and colours.

"Fusing offers much more opportunity to be creative and expand my offering of works to include objects and shapes I could never accomplish with foil or lead came. I am delighted by my transition to kiln-fired art!"

Gotham Glassworks moved to Schomberg in 2008 and Greg added fused glass to his offering with the addition of a large glass kiln in 2008.

Be sure to check out Events on the Gotham Glassworks website for up-to-date opportunities to see and purchase Greg's work in 2012 including the O.A.C. pARTners tour, Transfigurations at The Bartlett Gallery at Alton Mill, and Schomberg Village Street Gallery September 15-16.

Greg serves on the boards of Arts Society King and York Region Arts Council.
